Public Digital Humanities at PLU

1.13.20

9-12 | AUC 133

In this workshop, professors Bridget Draxler (St. Olaf) and Danielle Spratt (CSUN) will provide an overview of strategies and best practices for designing and implementing a public digital humanities project, including developing teaching ideas and materials, creating reciprocal relationships with community partners and other stakeholders, designing reflection and assessment tools, and publishing scholarship on community-engaged teaching. The presenters will also share examples of public humanities projects in partnership with museums, libraries, literacy centers, archives, crowd-sourced digitization projects, and other online communities.
